FOREWORD

In the 47 years of the existence of the Public Opinion Quarterly, its contents have been cumulatively indexed only twice. The first cumulative index was published in 1969 and covered the first 31 volumes. This is the second. Behind it is a computer database designed to allow the production of future editions with greater frequency than the economics of the old typesetting methods would permit.

This project was conceived by Eleanor Singer and initiated by John P. Robinson during his term as chair of the Publications and Information Committee of the American Association for Public Opinion Research. It was executed by research assistants in the School of Journalism, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, under the direction of Gary D. Gaddy with planning assistance by Stanley Weardon. Lorrie Douglas, William Newton, and Gail Westry entered the data. James Yingst of the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign helped with the book review index. Robert Lesser of the UNC-CH Computation Center wrote the program for converting the coded data into subject and author indices. He was assisted by Mike Padrick. Gratitude is expressed to all of the above as well as to Norma L. Gilbertson, editor of the first index, whose work is incorporated herein, and to Alan Corneretto of Elsevier Science Publishing Company, for his role in bringing this project to completion.

EUROPEAN RESEARCH

THE JOURNAL OF THE EUROPEAN SOCIETY FOR OPINION AND MARKETING RESEARCH

Editor:

DRS. F.F.O. HOLZHAUER,
c/o ESOMAR Central Secretariat

Responsible Council Member:

Bryan A. Bates, United Kingdom

ESOMAR Secretary General:

Fernanda Monti, ESOMAR Central Secretariat,

The Netherlands

Despite antecedents going back to the '20's and '30's, it is only within the last forty years that the techniques of marketing and opinion research have come to be used as a major tool for the better information of corporations, public bodies and, indeed, governments concerning the behaviour, attitudes, desires and needs of human populations throughout the world.

Western Europe represents a market of some 350 million individuals from more than 17 countries; it is indeed the 'heartland' of European culture but, because of the variety of languages and national social structures, Europe has presented a very considerable challenge to researchers. This challenge has generated many new concepts and innovative procedures in this field of research.

EUROPEAN RESEARCH, which is now in its 12th year of publication, was established to keep researchers informed of the latest developments in this rather complex part of the world. The editorial policy stresses practical research applications to practical research problems. While the emphasis is on aspects of European research, the articles published also reflect significant developments which are taking place elsewhere throughout the world.

Being professional scientific people in their own right, marketing and opinion researchers require regular up-dates on new technological developments and new theoretical concepts wherever and whenever they may appear relevant. EUROPEAN RESEARCH makes a point of including all such contributions in direct and comprehensible terms.

Subscription Information:

EUROPEAN RESEARCH (formerly published by Sigmamtext Ltd.) is a quarterly publication with about 48 pages per issue. In 1984, volume 12 will be published. The subscription price for volume 12 (in 4 issues) is Dfl. 99.00/US $38.00 (add Dfl. 21.00/US $8.00 for handling and postage).

JOURNAL OF Economic Psychology

Editor: W. FRED VAN RAAIJ, Erasmus University, Rotterdam, The Netherlands.

Associate Editors: PAUL ALBOU, Université René Descartes, Paris, France, and RICHARD T. CURTIN, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, U.S.A.

Published under the auspices of the "European Research in Economic Psychology" Society, the JOURNAL OF ECONOMIC PSYCHOLOGY aims to present both theoretical and applied research that will improve the understanding of behavioral, especially socio-psychological, aspects of economic phenomena and processes.

The JOURNAL OF ECONOMIC PSYCHOLOGY seeks to be a channel for the increased interest in using behavioral science methods for the study of economic behavior, and so contribute to better solutions of societal problems, by stimulating new approaches and new theorizing about economic affairs. Economic behavior in connection with inflation, unemployment, taxation, and economic development, as well as consumer information and economic behavior in the market place are the major themes of interest.

The JOURNAL OF ECONOMIC PSYCHOLOGY contains (a) reports of empirical research on economic behavior; (b) assessments of the state of the art in various subfields of economic psychology; (c) articles providing a theoretical perspective or a frame of reference for the study of economic behavior; (d) articles explaining the implications of theoretical developments for practical applications; (e) book reviews; (f) announcements of meetings, conferences, seminars, new research programs, and major research projects within the field.

Special issues of the Journal may be devoted to themes of particular interest. The Journal will encourage exchange of information between researchers and practitioners by being a forum for discussion and debate of issues in both theoretical and applied research.

In 1983 the second in the series of special issues on "Fiscal Psychology" was published. Also, there were two special double issues (Volume 3, no. 3/4, and Volume 4, no. 1/2) containing selected papers presented at the International Conference on "Consumer Behavior and Energy Policy", held in Noordwijkerhout, The Netherlands, 26-29 September 1982.

Special issue (3:2) on FISCAL PSYCHOLOGY:

Taxation and tax resistance (H. van de Braak)
The protestant work ethic, human values and attitudes towards taxation (A. Furnham)
Tax evasion behavior: a psychological framework (E.A.G. Groenland and G.M. van Veldhoven)
Home production and the tax system (J.H. Leuthold)
Public expenditure: perceptions and preferences (A. Lewis)
The effects of income and inflation on personal satisfaction: functional measurement in economic psychology - a comment (M.S. Silver)
Descriptive analysis of the effects of income and inflation on personal satisfaction: a reply to Silver (I.P. Levin, S.V. Farsane and J.A. McGraw)

The Dutch guilders price is definitive. US $ price: subject to exchange rate fluctuations
